A Night of Horror.

A new western town, but lately reclaimed from the wilderness, where the houses are few, mean and ugly; the streets mud or dust, the trees destroyed, and the goneral appearance one of poverty struggling with heavy obstacles; where the wolves run the mail in shead of time, and night is made hideous by a tailor practicing on a flate—this is a good place to get away from. A new western town, but lately reclai

rom. Into such a town as this I once rode o horseback, at the end of a weary day. Night had closed in, and I was guided to the hotel by the thousand and one boys of the place, and the noise issuing from the barroom, no less beastly and disagreeable.

I found the landlord shut up in a corner pen, dealing out liquid insantly to his customers. To my request for a supper and a bed, he replied that I could eat my fill,

"Oh! walk; I won't say a word about it."
"Well, don't. When addressed or interfered with, I am apt to get furious. I nearly brained a poor man with a dog iron that ther night."

"The devil you did!"
"Yes, I did." Well, I'll be blowed! That's rather lisagreeable. A fellow might, under an mpulse, blurt out something to you."
"Better not." "No. I should think not. '

A long pause followed this. At last the now wide-awake lodger asked abruptly:
"Did you notice my hat on the floor?"
"I believe I did." "If you walk, you know, I'd rather yo youldn't step on it." "I'll bear that in mind:"

After another long pause he again

"Did you notice that door on the left? "I saw a door on my left."
"Well, if you walk, I'd advise you not o go out there. It opens on a perch, only he perch hasn't been built, and it's twen ty feet down into the stable yard."

"I say, you did really brain a man with a dog iron?"
"I tried pretty hard.".

Then came in a silence that was not roken. After a little while I heard my bedfellow creeping softly from the other side of the bed. "Couldn't you get a bed?"

"Yes, I had a double bed to myself, when that stupid ass of a landlord sent up a crazy fellow, who walked and struck out with dog-irons."

"I went as quick as ever I could," says one boy, when his father asked him why he didn't stay all night, when he had been absent three hours on a ten minute errand. The sarcasm had no effect on the boy.

Going after the cows was a serious thing in my day. I had to climt up a hill which was covered with wild strawberrice in the season. Cinid any boy pass by those tripe berries? And then in the fragrant hill-pasture, there were bods of wintergreen with red berries, tufts of columbine, roots of sassafras to be dug, and dozens of good

No other boys know how to appreciate a holiday as the farm-boy does; and his best ones are of a peculiar kind. Going fishing is of course one sort. The excitement of rigging up the tackle, digging the bait, and the anticipation of great luck; these are pure pleasures, enjoyed because they are rare. Boys who can go a fishing any time care but little for it.

Tramping all day through brush and his since the smile, but—not thus smiles grandmamma! Yes! the smile comes. He is gone; many thoughts and many tomes pass by; the handsome youth is grandmamma—yes, there she sits again, as an old lady, gazing a' the withered rose that lies in the book.

Tramping all day through brush and briar, fighting flies and mosquitoes, and briar, fighting flies and mosquitoes, and branches that tangle the line, and snags that break the book, and returning home late and hungry, with wet feet and a slept; but it became more and more still, and have the family crowd out at the kitchen door to look at 'em, and say, and have the family crowd out at the kitchen door to look at 'em, and say, "Pretty well done for you, bub, and did you catch that big one yourself?" This is slee pure happinese, the like of which is sleepure happinese, the like of which the boy will never have again; not if he comes to be a selectman and deacon, and to "keep store."

But the holidays I recall with delight to stare blindly in on me, and wink as the candle fared in the wind.

I found my companion measuring off his dreams by snores, and undressing, "solled in" at the landlord had suggested. My stranger turned over with something between a growl and a grunt as I crept to lite at the case of this at the landlord had suggested. Incre are so many bright spots in the life of a farm boy, that I cometimes think I should like to live the life over again; I should almost be willing to be a girl if it were not for the chores. There is a great comfort to a boy in the amount of work he can get rid of doing. It is sometimes astonishing how slow he can go on an errand, he who leads the school in a race. The world is new and interesting to jump pean, it was but natural the people abouted The world is new and interesting to him, and there is so much to take his attention off when he is sent to do anything. Perbaps he couldn't explain himself, why, when he is sent to the neighbor's after when he is sent to the neighbor's after yeast, he stops to stone the frogs; he isnot exactly cruel, but he wants to see if he can hit 'em. No other living thing can go so slow as a boy sent on an errand. His less seem to be dead, unless he happens to espy a woodchuck in an adjoining lot, when he gives chase to it like a deer; and it is a curious fact about boys, that two will be a great deal slower in doing anything than one, and that the more you have to help on a picce of work the less is accomplished. Boys have a power in helping each other

It had a frightfully impatient quiver in it, not at all like the sweet note that called us to dinner from the hay-field. It said: "Why on earth doesn't that boy come home? It is almost dark and the cows ain't mikked!" And that was the time the cows had to start into a brisk pace and make up for lost time. I wonder if any boy ever drove the cows home late, who did not say that the cows were at the further end of the pasture, and that "Old" the sund that "Old of the pasture, and the pasture in the great was a two so fondly the time that the time that the time that the time that with the same and a cauriosity as the summal himself. And then in the fragrant hill-pasture, there were bods of wintergreen with red berries, tufts of columbine, roots of easastras to be dug, and dozens of good things to eat or to smell, which I could not resist. It cometimes even lay in my way to climb a tree to look for a crow's nest, or to swing in the top, or to see if I could see the steeple of the villago church. It became very important sometimes for me to see the steeple; and in the most of my investigations the tin horn would blow a great blast from the farm house, which would send a cold chill down my back in the bottest days. I knew what it meant.

I persisted until the wretch informed me that there was a "feller" in No. 6, occupying a double bed, and I could "roll in there" if I so minded. It was dismal, but my only hope; so, after the evening indigestion, I climbed the rough stairs to No. 6. I was told by the landlord to walk in without knocking, and did so.

It was a cheerless room, without carpets upon the floor, or cartains to shot out the blank night of the windows that seemed to stare blindly in on me, and wink as the candle flared in the wind.

The Clothing Business .- To the Public: In this city we have instances of the bonefi of competition in reducing the prices of Ready way to compute with a rival establishment, they are, in all communities, men who seem to prefer the other method. The Boston Equare Dealing ()IL TERRITORY. One Price Clothing House, No. 11 Diamond street, as become one of our home institutions. Th nunsuers, coming here entire strangers in the large and prosperous business. Their interest are identical with those of our citizens, and they have done much to materially advance the inter estr of the community. We have before us as dyertising sheet coming from a house that he been but a few months in the business.

Ask for Bostotter's Stomach B.tters, and d on Spruce sixeet is offered for cale on rea upon a class of our citizens who could be all; pared from our midst. It says: "I mean bus! terms. Immediate pomession given. Inquire of sees and manage my own affairs." If this a th No. 3 Kinguland Block, or residence, Spruce st. case, and this man is competent to do busine and "manage his own affilies," why does be see to build up a reputation by trying to slar and un PROPOSALS dermine those of our cifizens who are in the sam line of business? No true gentlemen or busines Sewer Committee man who is competent to "manage his own af fairs," would descend to the level occupied by this individual. The sheet also says: Wednesday, Aug. 16, 187 price and no bantering !" "I sail under my own olore !" This is a broad statement for a me SEWER IN FRANKLIN ST., who but a shart time ago asked a man thirtee dollars for a cost, and on finding he could not sel it to him for that price, sold it to him for ten dol Pige Street to the Oil Creek R. R. lars. Is that the way "ne sails under his own colors" and his but "one price to all and no bantering!" It is but on a level with his usual nanuar of doing business.

The sheet also says: "And I will sell bette goods at lower prices than any Jewshop in Titus ville." This individual procures the greater por tion of his stock from a "Jew wholesale house" i Buff lo. That shows conclusively that the same "Jew shops" that he is trying to run down sell the same quality of goods at lower prices than b an possibly afford to, for the following reasons let. Their rents are double what we pay. 2d. We make our own goods, and are no obliged to buy of wholesale Louses, paying the large percentage.

3d. We did not have to pay a large bonus i have to charge a high price to make it up.

The above proves beyond, a doubt that we co sell the same quality of goods at lower or co than those who try to attract a little attention by slurring and trying to undermine those who de outiness in a square and honorable manner. The we do just as we advertise we leave to our many ot on his own merits, but by running dow
